State Librarian TO HELP ENFORCE THE TRAFFIC LAW

Movable Posts Will be Placed at
Four Street Intersections to Warn Motorists of Ordinance.

TO SEE IF IT IS PRACTICAL

If City Officials Find Them so, They
May be Stationed at Other
Points in the City.

Traffic posts will be placed at four of the street corners in the business district to aid in the enforcement of the traffic ordinance. One of these posts is in place at the corner of Main and Second streets. The post takes the place of a policeman in that drivers, if they pay attention to the post, cannot help but drive to the right and make the square turns in turning from one street into another.

The posts will be placed at the intersections of Morgan and Second streets; Perkins and Second and Main and First streets. The city officials believe these posts will be of great value in helping enforce the ordinance. This "right and left" ordinance has been on the books for several years, but despite this fact, there are drivers of automobiles who pay no attention to the rules when making a turn from one street into another street. The rule is to keep to the right and by going around these posts it is always possible to do this.

The posts will be placed at the different corners in the business district first as an experiment and then if they prove successful may be placed on other corners. The police will begin enforcing the traffic ordinance and with the aid of the posts it is not necessary for a man to be stationed at the corners all the time.

The traffic posts here were made by Superintendent Mahan of the water and light plant and are as those to be found in the larger cities. They are painted a dark red and not built so heavy that they would damage a machine in case of collision. The police would like to figure out some way of placing a red light on top of the posts for use at night.

The new muffler ordinance will go into effect on August 4 and the police are preparing to enforce this law and put a stop to the noise from automobiles.

First Anniversary of World War

AS SEEN IN FRANCE

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS,

(Second Story)

Paris, July 27.—The Great Doubt has been lifted from the heart of France.

The accomplishment of this was the grandest deed of French arms in all the year of Armageddon which began a year ago this week. In history the feat will be known as the history of the Battle of the Marne.

Not only did this victory probably decide the fate of France geographically, but its influence upon the spirit of the country was, and still

ASSAULT CASE DISMISSED

Prosecuting Witness Would Not

The case against Elmer Hendricks, charged with assault and battery was dismissed this afternoon in police court when it was found that the name of the prosecuting witness was wrong on the affidavit. Hendricks was alleged to have attempted to drag Ora Ives off of the merry-go-round, but Ives refused to sign the affidavit, and the charge was dismissed. Hendricks was fined Monday on a charge of public intoxication.

POLICE ARREST BOY BUT HAVE NO CASE

Clyde Osborn is Held For Time
Tuesday in Connection With Robberies at Claire Smith Home.

HARDIN HAD SUSPICIONS

Clyde Osborn was held for a short time today by the police, who believed he knew something regarding the robbery at the home of Clair Smith in West Second street last Saturday night. He was released without bond and the trial set for Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

Osborn was seen entering his own home Sunday morning about 3:15 o'clock by Policeman Hardin and Hardin's suspicions were aroused. Osborn, instead of going in his front door, used a ladder and went in from a rear window. It was explained to the police that he frequently did this because his mother was afraid to stay at home by herself without locking the front door. It will be recalled that the Smith home was entered twice last week, the last time being Saturday night, when Smith alleged that his watch was taken. Osborn did not know the reason for his arrest and expressed surprise when told by the police.

Everybody remembered 1870. The old remembered the swift defeat in the Franco-Prussian war and the horrible nightmare of blunders. The young had heard the story time and again. The French, in 1870, were totally unprepared for war, were badly equipped and badly led.

TO ARRANGE FOR ENCAMPMENT

Members of Ivy Company No. 35, U.
R. K. of P. Will Discuss French
Licks Meeting Thursday Night.

WILL INCLUDE TWO STATES

General Trabue Announces There
Will be no Competitive Drills—
Prizes on Attendance.

Members of Ivy company No. 35, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will meet Thursday night to determine who is going to the bi-ennial encampment of the Knights from Indiana and Illinois which will begin at French Lick the fifteenth of August.

S. L. Trabue of this city, who is a member of the staff of Major General Loomis, commanding the Uniform Rank of the United States and Canada, with the rank of general, said today that he hoped to see a big representation from his company.

The encampment will be different this year. There will be no competitive drills as heretofore, but prizes will be awarded on the basis of attendance and inspection, fifty per cent on each.

General Trabue said that Ivy company would compete for the prize and that it would be in class A. The prize will be $250, something worth working for.

The last bi-ennial encampment was held at Danville, Ill., and it is pretty sure that if members of Ivy company see a chance of any more experiences like those they enjoyed at Danville, they will most likely arrange for a trip to French Lick. Members of Ivy company still talk about the Danville encampment.

General Trabue has received word that Major General Loomis will be present. When Supreme Chancellor Brigham Young was here the other day, a guest at the home of James E. Watson, General Trabue saw him and learned that Mr. Young would also attend the encampment.

There is every reason to believe, it is stated, that the encampment will be one of the most largely attended, outside of a national encampment, that was ever held. It is expected that at least 2,500 uniformed men will be present. The Kentucky brigade has sent word that it will be present and the Ohio brigade has also been invited.

Tom Taggart has thrown open his golf links in front of his hotel for the use of the Knights and promises to make things lively for them. This camp will be known as Camp Hunt and will be under the command of Brigadier General Gray of Indiana, and Brigadier General Bertoni of Illinois.

In addition to the prominent officials already mentioned, there will be present: Governor Ralston, of Indiana, Governor McCreary of Kentucky, Governor Dunne of Illinois, and Governor Willis of Ohio; also Supreme Vice Chancellor Brown, Grand Chancellor Williamson, of Illinois, Grand Chancellor Brown of Indiana. A great many of the lodge members will be accompanied by their families, who will be accommodated at the hotels near the encampment field. Thousands of dollars in cash prizes will be given as well as many other prizes for the best drilled teams in attendance.

BOSTON SEXTET IS UNUSUAL ONE

Harry Dunbar Writes That Musicians Coming Here Held Audiences Other Places Spellbound.

HEARD THEM RECENTLY

Other Attractions Fourth Day Will
be Dr. Gabriel Maguire and
Dr. Carolyn Geisel.

The fourth day of the Rush county chautauqua—Wednesday—which opens next Sunday, will be as interesting as any of the rest. For that day chautauqua patrons will have the opportunity to hear a concert by the Boston Symphony Sextette, a lecture by Carolyn Geisel and a prelude by the sextette and an illustrated lecture by Dr. Gabriel Maguire, F. R. G. S., a noted explorer, at night.

The attraction of Dr. Maguire does exist alone because of the fact that he has spent six years in the jungles of Africa as an explorer, but also on the fact that he is an Irishman with the native Irish wit. His lecture is entertaining as well as educational. His rare combination of rich humor and common sense, his unconventional methods and the worth of his message are expected to make his appearance here one that will long be remembered.

Some exquisite music from the Boston Sextette is promised. E. B. Thomas, chairman of the talent committee this year, is in receipt of a letter from Harry Dunbar, a recognized authority on chautauqua musical organizations.

Mr. Dunbar has become so proficient in the art of preparing musical organizations for the chautauqua that his label on them always means that they are exceptional.

The Sextette is composed of a group of musicians from the Boston Symphony orchestra, which is famed on this and other continents.

"The Boston Symphony Sextette is the most magnificent musical attraction which has ever appeared on the chautauqua platform," writes Mr. Dunbar.

At Evansville, Ind., the 19th inst., they simply carried the audience by storm, and at New Albany 2000 people sat without the slightest movement or sound when they played.

"Remember they are not a six piece orchestra but an ensemble of the very finest players now living and are so acknowledged. They simply entrance hearers by the marvelous beauty of tone and execution, and the completeness of their musical effect. Their selections are for the most part absolutely new and composed for their instrumentation. The music is not loud and the platform manager should, before they commence, make a good talk setting out these facts, and insist on absolute silence. The brilliance of their playing is wonderful. Every place will want them back. All are great soloists. The double bass solo is great and the flute solos gorgeously beautiful. This company sets a new pace in chautauqua music. If anybody says they don't like the sort of "classical" music these fine men play, we cannot imagine any human art that would move them."

BE FIRM IS GIST OF GERMAN STAND

BELIEVES NO BREAK IS DUE

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Berlin, (By Way of The Hague), July 27.—"Germany in her reply to the American note must stand firm."

Under secretary for foreign affairs Zimmerman today read me that excerpt from a letter, one of the many he and other officials have received from German citizens, indicating that the people will not sanction the giving up of Germany's submarine war.

"Do the future relations between Germany and America look as dark as some declare?" he was asked.

"No, no," was the quick response. "In this day and age is it possible for two great nations to differ without coming to a break, Germany will never do anything to bring that about. You can assure the American people of that."

"But in all probability we shall answer in the manner the writer of this letter calls for: 'Be firm.'"

"We can never give up submarine warfare. You can see that the people here will back us up."

SUPPLEMENT TO BRITISH NOTE DUE

Optimists See in it Hope For Ending Naval Difficulties With
Britain and Germany.

MAY HINT AT MEDIATION

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 27.—The state department today received a cable from British foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey, asking that the British note received yesterday relative to the order in council be withheld from the public. The message said a supplement to the note is being prepared.

Officials saw in this cable a faint ray of hope that a way was opening out of America's difficulties both with Britain and Germany.

They asked whether it meant that the British were willing to modify their "starvation order" against Germany. Though few believed this could be the case, some optimistic people suggested that the supplement might contain a hint which would make it possible for Washington to mediate between London and Berlin concerning naval warfare. If that should prove true, they believed the crisis would pass. The British note will not be made public tomorrow as planned.

REDFIELD IS ON JOB AT CHICAGO

Secretary of Commerce Ready to land Catastrophe.

RECOVERED DEAD IS NOW 828

Witness at Coroner's Inquest Says
Passengers Were Packed Too
Tightly to Get on One Side.

(By United Press.)

Chicago, July 27.—"No official incompetence will be assumed and none will be pardoned," was the gist of what Secretary of Commerce Redfield would say upon his arrival here today to look into the department's phase of the Eastland tragedy. Secretary Redfield said he would confer at once with federal officials.

Two more bodies were recovered from the Eastland early today. The total recovered dead is now 828. At least 400 bodies and possibly 500 are still in the hulk. This was the estimate made by Coroner Hoffman after a conference with divers and police officials today.

Most of the scores of bodies still held in the ball room of the Eastland are women and children. This fact was developed at the coroner's inquest today by Robert Moore, forty-five years, a traveling salesman, of Chicago, and a passenger on the Eastland. He was the first witness.

"I boarded the boat at seven o'clock," said Moore. "About ten minutes later there was a noticeable list. It could not have been due to crowding on one side, for the crowd on the boat was too great. Passengers were packed so tight they were necessarily evenly distributed."

Moore said even at that time passengers were being admitted aboard five and six abreast.

"I don't see how it was possible for less than three or four inspectors to count them," swore the witness.

"I went to the dance floor and had just noticed that the crowd of women with babies in their arms and children under 12 years were packed too tightly to pass through, when she went over."

Divers today reported scores of bodies still jammed into the great ball room.

Moore said there must have been at least five hundred in the dance room alone.

A coroner's jury will start an inquest at once, while Federal departments, headed by Secretary Redfield and officers from the city police department and the office of state's attorney will gather evidence, holding formal inquiry in abeyance until the inquest has progressed as far

Furs in Summer Time

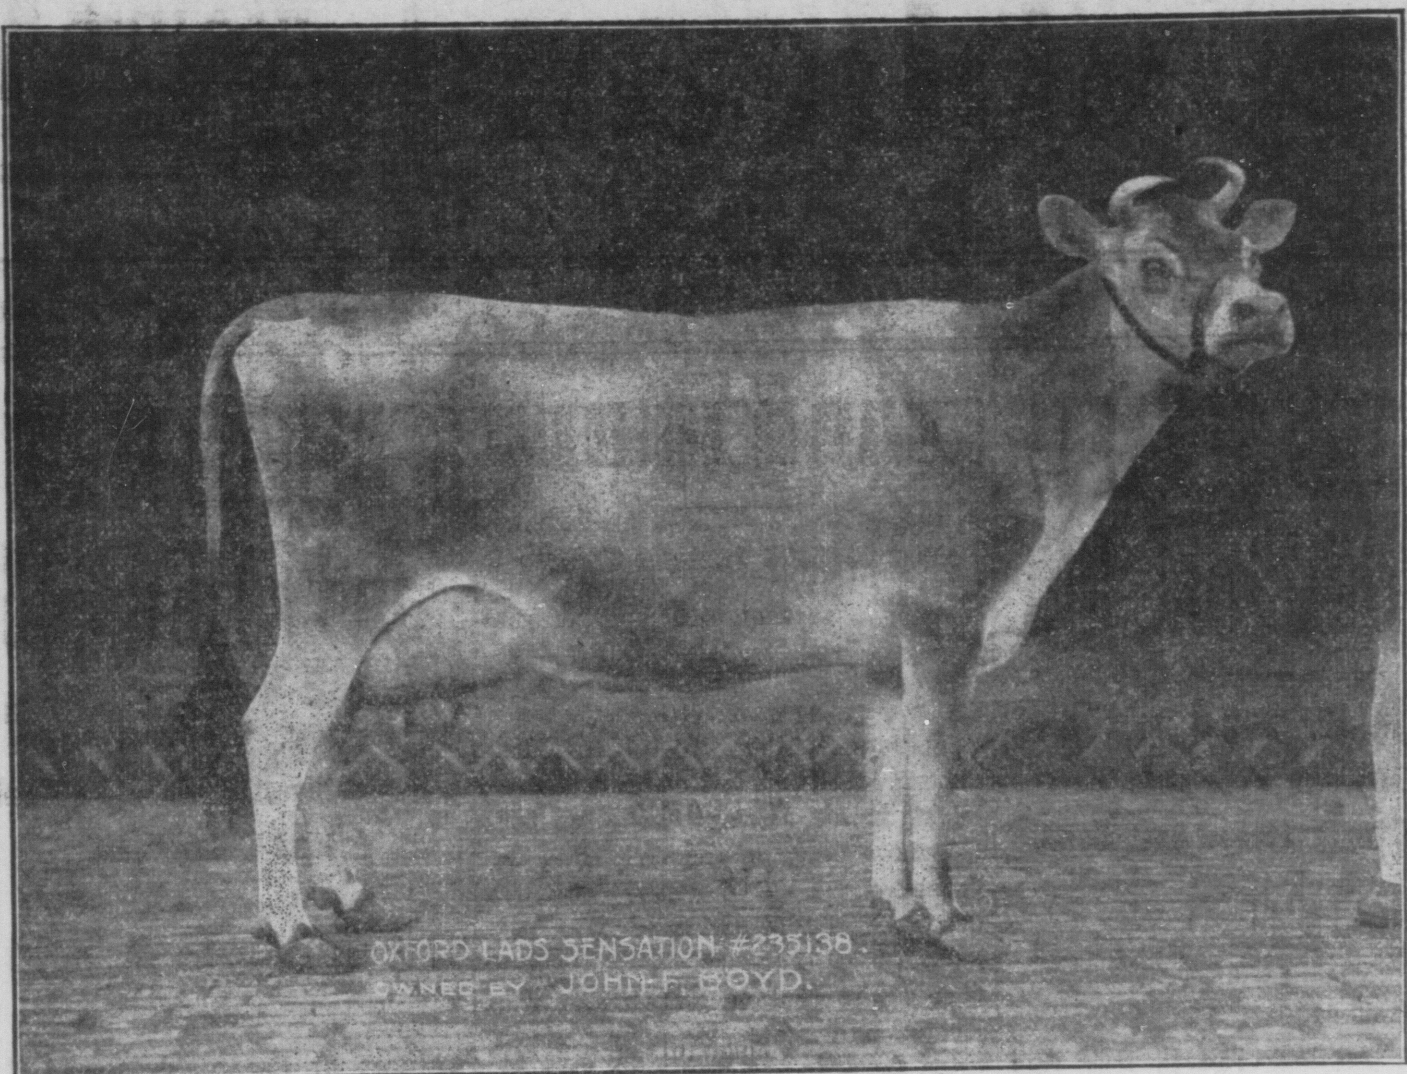

Summer furs are the rage this summer.

Though the jokesmiths have poked fun at the idea the women have retorted that it is just as sensible for them to wear fluffy boas as it is for men to "keep thick coats on."

You will find them described from time to time in the index of "fashion"—the advertising columns of The Daily Republican.

RAISING POULTRY For PROFIT

By John Wildig

To preserve eggs for future use they must be kept at a low temperature in pure air and a slightly moist atmosphere. The market man accomplished this by cold storage. Unfortunately, however, he must get his egg supply from the farms and can not control the conditions under which they are gathered. The result is he can not pay a good price for what he gets. He must make allowance for all loss due to spots and rots, blood rings and floats, everyone of which is due to poor handling before he gets them. If the farmer will see to it that the eggs he markets are properly cared for, his own profits will be greater.

Better methods of caring for eggs also make possible a constant home supply of sweet fresh eggs during the time when hens are not laying. While a farmer has no cold storage plant, modern methods of egg preservation are quiet as efficient a means toward the end.

The various egg preservations in common use, but a few are satisfactory. The old time method of preserving eggs in bran, oats and salt is pretty well extinct. Eggs preserved in this manner usually show considerably evaporation and in case of bran or oats usually have a musty flavor. Those packed in salt generously taste salty. The best methods seems to be something that will exclude the air by filling up the pores in the egg shell, thus preventing evaporation and at the same time excluding moulds.

One of the best preservatives is the saturated lime solution. This is easily made by slacking some new lime in water. After it is thoroughly slacked and has settled, stir repeatedly and allow it to settle the clear liquid over the eggs placed in crocks or wooden tubs. Two pounds of lime will give enough solution to preserve thirty dozen eggs. Eggs thus preserved are good in quality and flavor provided, of course, the eggs were strictly fresh and of prime quality when immersed in the lime water.

The best preservative, however, seems to be the water glass solution. Eggs will keep indefinitely and after ten months are for all purposes, except poaching, quite as good as a fresh egg and but little if any inferior in flavor. The process is simple. The eggs should be gathered daily from clean nests and preferably should be infertile. Old, cracked or thin-shelled eggs should not be used. (To be continued next week.)

USE BILLBOARDS FOR DRY FIGHT

Temperance Advocates in England Using This Means to Help Their Cause

LARGE FUND BEING RAISED

(By United Press.)
London, July 16: (By Mail)—If printer's ink induces men to join the army, why not utilize it to make them stop drinking?

Following the example of the War Office in conducting its recruiting campaign by means of advertising, temperance advocates purpose to correct the effect of the drink evil on the output of munitions by similar means.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who devised the scheme, is now raising funds for the placarding of the districts most concerned with posters reading thus: "Drink to you means death to our soldiers."

"They gave up their lives for you. Won't you give up your drink for them?"

"The sober workman fights for Britain. The drunken workman fights for Germany."

"You will be Healthies without drink—you will be Happier without it—you will be Richer without it. Sign off for the war."

Said Sir Arthur, explaining his plan today: "I want to make it impossible for a man to enter a saloon without his eye meeting a reminder of his duty to his country and his mates in France."

SOME INDIANA PEOPLE GET QUICK RELIEF

Hundreds of Indiana people have found relief from stomach and digestive troubles by the use of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy.

This remedy is safe and efficient. The first dose gives results. And the treatment is not long. It has a wonderful record.

Here are the statements of two who have used and proven the merits of the remedy:

CHARLES INMAN, 424 East Chestnut St., Hartford City, Ind.—"Four doctors said they could not cure me unless I went to Fort Wayne to be operated on. I took your treatment. In three weeks I went to work and haven't missed but a half day since."

WALTER SPRAY, 1011 South Second St., Frankfort, Ind.—"Before I took your medicine I suffered a great deal, but since I took the first dose I have not had a bad spell. I feel it is even more than you claim."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Amusements

The Princess offers a three reel feature "In The Days of Famine" for the program tonight. Dorothy Kelly, James Morrison and George Cooper are featured and it is said to be a fine drama. Tomorrow night the fourth installment of "The Goddess" will be shown.

The Mystic will show a Reliance drama "The Lucky Transfer" for the first picture tonight. It is said to tell a thrilling story. The second is a drama entitled "Do Unto Others." The last is a comedy "Beating Hearts and Carpets." Tomorrow night the two reel feature "Her Buried Past" will be shown.

The Gem will show a wild animal drama for tonight, a picture that is said to be the equal of anything of the sort ever shown here. Marie Walcamp will have the leading role in this thrilling Bison picture. Advance notices say that full-grown man-eating lions and lionesses, elephants and other wild animals that frequent the jungles will have a part. The picture shows the man-eaters attacking people, not like the proverbial milk-fed lions do, but with the deadly intensity that characterizes the attack of a wild animal on a human being. "In the Hills Beyond," with Sydney Ayres in the leading part, will be seen tonight. Charlie Chaplin will appear in a comedy Wednesday and Harry Myer and Rosemary Theby in "Baby" Thursday night.

The Gem management announced today that one coupon will be given with each five cent admission and that six of them are good for one five cent admission.

PLANS TO REORGANIZE ARMY

Secretary of War Will Present Them to Wilson

(By United Press.) Washington, July 27.—Secretary of War Garrison and on his return from Seabright, N. J., today called a conference with Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge, General Scott, chief of staff, and General Bliss, assistant chief, to go over a tentative draft of an army reorganization plan which the secretary expects to submit to the president on the latter's return from Cornish.

The city fire department Tuesday was testing out an arrangement to pump water from a fire plug with the fire engine. Such a thing could be done in a case of an emergency when there was no fire pressure in the mains. It was stated today that if the engine could have been hooked to the fire plug the night of the Masonic Temple burned, it might have been saved.

BOYS' JUDGING CONTEST AT STATE FAIR

One of the best educational features the Indiana State Fair offers to the farm boys of the state is the judging contest, in which the boys show their ability to judge livestock and grains, the awards being free scholarships at Purdue University. Since this feature was started some years ago about twenty farm boys have won and used the Purdue scholarships, and to them has been opened the way to obtain an education along agricultural lines which might not otherwise have been available to them.

The boys who do not win scholarships find it worth while to enter the contest, for it gives them opportunity closely to inspect the high grade stock and farm products at the fair. The number of farm boys in the contest increases from year to year, and they inspect the same stock and grains that the regular judges pass upon. Four scholarships will be awarded at the coming fair, the contest to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 7, under the general direction of Prof. G. I. Christie, of Purdue University. It is open to all Indiana boys of 16 to 20 years of age who have not attended an agricultural college. Applications for entry blanks should be sent to Charles Downing, secretary of the State Fair, Indianapolis.

What Mgr. Razor Has to Say About Silent Dramas

I've just seen "Baby," a two reel comedy with Harry Myer and Rosemary Theby, which we will show on Thursday night. It's one of the simplest stories in the world. It gave me one of the CLEANEST and longest laughs I ever had in my life. It deals with a young father who is so dippy about his baby son that he makes a perfect fool of himself at home and at his office. There's no complicated plot to follow. You don't have to sit on the edge of your seat waiting for the crool villyun to rescue the pore goil or anything of that sort. It's one of those easy-going, darn-fool, light comedies with just enough of the farcial stuff in it to satisfy you. Take my word for it, it's some comedy.

Respectfully,
CHAS. R. RASOR.

John Sharp Admits it

Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi is credited with having told his Democratic brethren during the last session of Congress, "The poor, dear, old foolish Democratic party is going through the same game that she can be generally trusted to go through," said Senator Williams to his Democratic colleagues. "You can't govern the country. You are incompetent." Some measure of that incompetency has been referred to hitherto in stories pointing out specific errors in tariff bill due to inexcusable blundering. Mistakes in other laws have been discussed in more recent articles. A brief resume of these mistakes is given herewith, to be followed later by instances of other faulty Democratic legislation.

No. 8 The provision enacted by the Democratic Congress to build up the American merchant marine utterly failed to achieve its purpose, and conferred the proposed benefit instead upon competing vessels of other countries, giving to foreigners the profits from high freight rates.

The Price She Pays.

There is hardly an American woman nowadays who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill-health. It may be that dreadful backaches, dragging pains, headaches, nervousness or the tortures of a displacement. It is the price she pays. To women in this condition Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs which brings glorious health to suffering women.

according to the decision of the Court of Customs Appeals in the five per cent case.

No. 9. The Democratic Congress blundered in enacting the law to provide greater safety and comfort at sea for passengers and seamen by naming two conflicting dates for the time it should take effect.

No. 10. The "war tax" law was inaccurately drawn; was not based upon correct estimates and failed to provide the money needed; necessitated expensive litigation; and adequate preparation for its enforcement was not made, causing great delay, annoyance and confusion.

No. 11. The executive branch of the Democratic administration is at war with the legislative branch, and has asked the Supreme Court to declare inoperative the law allowing a five per cent reduction in the tariff on goods imported in American bottoms.

No. 12. The most vital error a legislative body can make was incorporated in the "war tax" law, Congress having given two conflicting dates as to the time Schedule B should begin to operate.

No. 13. Congress invited litigation over Schedule B of the "war tax" law by failing to clearly express the meaning of the provision to tax "cosmetics" and the matter is now in the courts.

No. 14. Thousands of dollars collected from trust companies under the "war tax" law may have to be refunded because Congress failed to make clear whether or not they are subject to the tax—a question that has been taken to the courts for determination.

At last we have the promised revelations of Becker, the Police Lieutenant who is under sentence of death for instigating the murder of a gambler. But the trouble is that he reveals nothing of the consequence that the public did not know. His so-called revelations have too much to do with dead men and shed too little light on present conditions in the underworld. In short, he has not rendered a service big enough to make it probable that the Governor will spare his life. But it is clear that if Becker had told all he knew at his trial, he would not now be on his way to the death chair. That he has told all now, is far from clear.

"Peace the Unattainable." This was the title of a cartoon in the New York "World." Why unattainable? Every good thing that this world has achieved has been considered impossible when proposed. But the visionary enthusiasts have gone right on striving for the "Unattainable" until they have achieved it.

Are women more thrifty than men. It seems so, for a model loan concern reports that of 2,444 borrowers, only 122 were women. But 829 were government or municipal employees!

A number of Lebanon girls gave a Kewpie dance. It should be further explained, however, that the Kewpie idea was carried out only in the decorations.

There are a lot of good people in Rushville and we would like to hear them telling outsiders what a good town we have.

The man who boosts his home town is invariably boosted by the town. It pays to be a booster.

The man known as a failure is often possessed of brains but is without the faculty of using them.

Now suppose we give Thaw an opportunity to forget himself.

DEMOCRATS TO HAVE NEW PAPER

Anti-Taggart Forces Backing
Weekly Publication to be Edited by Horace Herr.

WILL SUPPORT JOHN W. KERN

Will Stand For Several Non-Partisans Issues Including State wide Prohibition.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 27.—The newspaper stork is about to visit Indianapolis. A Democratic weekly, promising to take an active part in state politics, is under way and probably will make its appearance the first week in September. Horace H. Herr, well known magazine and newspaper writer, is interested in the project and will be in charge of the editorial policy of the publication. Herr, until recently, was editor of the Indiana Daily Times. He left the Times because of a disagreement with owners as to the paper's policy.

The weekly will represent the anti-Taggart forces of the Democrats and will be the first publication of state-wide circulation doing so. It is said that not a dollar of the money furnishing the financial support has come from any one supporting the Taggart organization.

Among those who have invested in the new venture are Jas. H. McGill and George H. Dodge of Valparaiso, John R. Jones, father of the new primary law, James K. Risk, of Lafayette and others.

The paper will stand for several non-partisan issues such as the revision of the state constitution and prohibition. Several Republicans interested in these issues are said to have helped to finance the project.

A United Press reporter, asked Mr. Herr what would be the attitude of the publication towards the senatorial candidacy of John W. Kern and he said:

"I have considered John Kern one of the most progressive democrats in the state. Sometimes I have felt that he might be more aggressive against the arbitrary methods of the organization that has brought the party into ill repute, yet whenever there has been a real show down, Senator Kern has stood with the progressive element of the party. I see no reason at this time why we should not support Kern."

HOOSIER HISTORY

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission)

A Pioneer Menu

"Bounteous feasting always accompanied hard labor of neighborhood gatherings. A meal of venison, roast turkey, fried chicken, hominy, ham and eggs, potatoes, wild hog, steaming corn bread, hot biscuits, gingerbread, preserves, jellies, tarts, pies and good milk and butter, all set on a large table around which the workers gathered, could not fail to satisfy the appetite of an epicure. Total abstinence was not in fashion in those days, and the farmer who did not supply his hands with liquor was considered stingy indeed. A jug of whiskey was considered necessary for any undertaking of importance. The beverage was homemade and often of such strength that it was likely to sour or freeze." Fredrick Vogel in the Indiana Magazine of History.

ANOTHER ELECTION

(By United Press.)

Sullivan, Ind., July 27.—The saloon men made a desperate effort here today to put Haddon township in Sullivan county back into the wet column. Though the township voted dry by 234 majority two years ago, the wets hoped to swing the vote of the miners to their side. The result will effect the towns of Paxton and Carlyle.

* WATERFRONT CAT HAILED *
* AS WISEST OF ALL FELINES *

San Francisco, July 27.—Jimmy, a waterfront cat, is today hailed by seamen here as the wisest feline in the world. They assert that Jimmy has the second sight, which enables her to foresee coming events and govern her movements accordingly. This reputation is fastened on Jimmy as a result of the trouble which descended upon the steamer "O. M. Clark" recently off the Channel Islands.

For years Jimmy resided in the hold of the "O. M. Clark." She feasted on fat and juicy rats and enjoyed life. On several occasions, however, she gave birth to large families of kittens, and was beloved by every mariner who trod the good ship's deck.

On the day the vessel left port for its last voyage Captain F. N. Higgins dropped a shipping register on the wharf. It fell open at the signal code page and revealed an arrangement of flags meaning "I am starving, come at once."

Horried at this evil omen, Captain Higgins tucked the book under his arm and fled to his ship. Just as he crossed the gang-plank he met Jimmy majestically departing.

"Pussy, pussy," wheedled Captain Higgins. But the cat remained obdurate. Jimmy regarded Captain Higgins fixedly for a moment, raised her eyebrows significantly, and stalked over to a steam schooner moored in Oakland Estuary, where she took up her residence in a coal box and refused to be lured back to her old home.

Captain Higgins set sail. The ship was blown off her course, and so beaten and buffeted by the howling storms that, in mid-ocean, her crank-shaft broke and she wallowed in the trough of the sea, helpless.

Food and water ran low. First Mate McAllister and four men put out in a small boat. They arrived at Port San Luis, weak and starving. Meanwhile the crew of the "Clark" had rigged a sail and the vessel limped into San Diego and then to Oakland.

Jimmy with several small Jimmies arrived on the steam schooner a few days later.

COURT MARTIAL TRIAL FOR BALL

National Guardsman, Who Killed Private, Will be Given Hearing on Murder Charge.

HE WAS DOING GUARD DUTY

Case Was Dismissed in Criminal Court and Much Debated Question Will be Settled.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 27.—Edwin Ball, the national guardsman who shot and killed Walter Dowell, private of the guard, during the camp of instruction of the I. N. G. in 1913, will be tried by court martial in the near future. This statement was made to the United Press yesterday by Governor Ralston.

The governor said he would soon order the establishment of a military court to try Ball for murder. With this trial of Ball there will be settled in Indiana the much debated question whether a national guardsman, acting under orders to bring in a prisoner, can be held for murder in case he kills the prisoner in the performance of his duty.

Dowell, whose home was in Madison, Ind., was supposed to have been instrumental in smuggling liquor from Indianapolis into the encampment at Fort Harrison. Ball was a sergeant of the guard and on the night of July 21, 1913 was doing provost duty. Ball saw Dowell alight from a car and ordered him to stop. Dowell ran and Ball fired causing a wound from which Dowell died in a few days.

Ball was indicted by a grand jury for murder. The case dragged for a long time. Special Judge Hack ruled that criminal court had concurrent jurisdiction with the court martial, but the case was never set for trial. Hack nolle pressed the indictment July 3 of this year acting on a motion of Prosecutor Stevenson. The motion stated that the criminal court had no jurisdiction and that the state had not sufficient evidence to convict.

Ball's case has been the absorbing topic among national guardsmen for two years. In different parts of the state they have sided for and against Ball, with the result that the impression has developed the case is an awkward one to handle from a political point of view.

* HELEN KELLER CAN TELL *
* SIZE OF HER AUDIENCES. *

Helen Keller, who is perhaps the most talked of woman in America today, comes to the Rush County Chautauqua, on August 3d, to give her lecture entitled "Happiness." After one of her lectures someone asked Miss Keller if she could tell whether her audience were large or small, and in her answer showed what a remarkable use she makes of her own senses.

"Yes, it was a large audience," she said, "I can tell by the vibrations of many feet in action, and then the air is dense and warm when there are many people in the room."

"Can you tell if people are applauding you?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied, "by the vibration of the air."

Her listeners wanted to applaud, but were interrupted by another question.

"Can you tell if your audience is interested?"

"Oh yes, they always are."

And one wonders how anyone could help but be interested by the genius, a genius all the more strongly appreciated after one has listened to the story of her life, as told in the lectures.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder is troubling you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

First Anniversary of War

Their plans lacked co-hesion. Generals fought independently, one of the other. Treason was laid at the door of one and altogether it was a terrible mess in which the poor soldiers ever had the slightest chance notwithstanding a courage which wrung from even the Prussians the exclamation: "Oh, what brave fellows!"

So, last August, when the soldiers started for the war, each one bore in his heart a burden heavier than then knapsack on his back: Would history repeat itself? Would 1914 be another 1870? Was France better prepared this time? Would she be better led? Were her generals equal to the great task ahead? If not, then—

The troopers dared not let their minds run beyond this point. Individually the most intelligent soldiers in the world, they have the other curse and blessing of civilization, an imagination; so they sang and quit thinking; they joked with one another, never admitting even to themselves—let alone to their companions—that the doubt was there.

Back home the hearts of mothers, fathers, wives, sisters and sweethearts were troubled by the unexpressed dread lest 1914 prove another 1870. And if such should prove to be the case—

They, too, smiled and talked cheerfully of a new and irresistible France.

All knew, those who remained waiting as well as those who went to war, that for 44 years Germany had been living, eating, sleeping, drinking, dreaming war and that this war had come. What about France? Who was General Joffre? Who were the other generals? Newspapers had but recently declared that France was unprepared was this true? And all went on being troubled in secret lest France should again prove unready.

After vague news reached Paris that General Joffre was in retreat from Charleroi, the 1870 bugaboo loomed bigger and bigger. Maubeuge was invested; Lille was occupied. Then there came silent, tense days, without any real news. The government moved to Bordeaux; the Germans were now in Maubeuge, Compiègne, Soissons, Rheims, Chalons, Eprenay, Luneville, Verdun and Nancy were seriously menaced. Paris it seemed, was doomed and Uhlans were reported to be at the gates. The worst fears of soldiers and homefolks seemed realized. It looked like another 1870, only worse. Still there was no panic. There was the exodus of thousands of people who objected to living in Paris during a German occupation, but the city was calm. France's "sacred union" held firm.

But the Doubt, instilled into the mind of France by 1870, was there, galling and real. The people could not know that General Joffre was later to be called a genius. They could only wonder if his retreat was strategy or incompetency. The censorship was strict and they had few facts to base opinion on. They did not know the Battle of the Marne was being fought, nor that Joffre had performed, by winning a victory there, a sort of eighth wonder of the world. Yet this was true. General Bonnal said of this battle:

"This is the first time to my knowledge that a great army, retreating and fighting at the same time and for eight days in succession, was able to furnish the effort by itself to transform its long and painful retreat into an irresistible offensive."

Yet that is what the French army was able to do. Through this victory a new France was born. The Great Doubt was lifted, the 1870 bugaboo vanished. The people were given confidence in the army, the army in itself.

Henceforth, whatever may happen to the French soldier, he will refuse to be discouraged. He can advance, retreat or doggedly hold what he has won, any or all, with tenacity and good cheer. He has faith in his officers and faith in himself. He knows the war may be long, but he grins and grits his teeth: "We'll get 'em at last!" he says.

The ghost of 1870 has been laid.

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

BY ED L. KEEN

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

London, July 27.—After a year at war, the British Empire has somewhat less than three quarters of a million troops in the field, its Allies have approximately ten million.

The British front in the western theatre is about forty miles in length; the lines of the other Allies east and west, including Serbia and Montenegro, cover some sixteen miles. As the ratio of troops employed is one to fourteen and the ratio of mileage is one to forty, there appears to be some justification for the complaints recently made—quite unofficially, of course, both in France and Russia that England is not doing her share of the work.

But the question as to whether England is fulfilling her obligations should be considered in the light of her promises. On this basis, she has delivered more than was specified in the contract. There were two clauses in the secret agreement made with France long before the war started:

England would take care of the seas.

She would send an expeditionary force to France of 120,000 men.

That's all there was to it. She has carried out the first clause to the letter; she has sent nearly six times as many men to the firing line as she bargained for, and she is still sending them as fast as they can be trained.

Only the other day, the Temps of Paris in an obviously inspired editorial commenting on recent tributes paid to France by the British press, made these significant remarks: "Frankness should be mutual. If on the land the support of our British allies is still only limited, we must not forget that on the seas it is they who have had much the heaviest task. If at the beginning of the war we were able to complete the equipment of our army with a rapidity which was not one of the German staff's least surprises, we owe it to the fleet which rendered us masters of the seas." The Temps then admits that to this capital support on the sea, the British Empire has brought its industrial and financial resources, "while its military effort on land has really surpassed all forecasts."

There probably always will be some difference as to whether it was British valor or German blundering that saved Paris in the early days of the war. Perhaps it was the two. Anyhow, Paris was saved, and Britishers at least always will give the lion's share of the credit to Field Marshal, French, his generals and his soldiers. But even if the salvation of Paris was not due to the British, there is no question that they and they alone saved Calais and the other channel ports. Of course in accomplishing this, England has done herself a greater service than she has the French.

Since the failure of the Paris attack, Germany's main effort has been concentrated in the direction of Calais, and that is the reason why, until he has received sufficient reinforcement, General French will be unable to extend its front. The fate of the British Empire rests upon the holding of those forty miles.

All idea of the "big Spring drive" upon which the military writers had fed the imagination of the British public for months was abandoned at Neuve Chapelle, when at the cost of 13,000 men, the British barely made a dent in the German line of highly fortified trenches. In what was accomplished the Neuve Chapelle offensive was in a sense a victory; in what it failed to do, it was a defeat—for Lille was objective and the Germans are still firmly planted in Lillie.

Then after the second battle of Ypres, in which the Germans first used asphyxiating gases, came the battle of La Passee. This showed the British public why the "big drive" had become impossible. The British and French troops were to make a joint advance after a preliminary bombardment for three hours of the German trenches and the field of wire entanglement intervening. In that time the French fired nearly 200,000 high explosive projectiles; in one hour the British had exhausted their supply of 20,000 high explosives and the rest of the time used shrapnel. Result: The French infantry advanced two miles into trenches that had been practically cleared, with a loss of only two thousand; the British lost 15,000 men in attempting to take trenches that hadn't been cleared.

A newspaperman witnessed this battle. He told the public through the medium of the London Times the reason why the British had failed starting the scandal that disrupted the British Liberal Cabinet, caused the formation of a coalition ministry sheared Lord Kitchener's wings and created the new Department of Munitions, with Lloyd George at its head.

Somebody had blundered. Lord Northcliffe's newspapers fastened responsibility on Kitchener. While giving him due credit for his magnificent work in raising organizing and training the largest volunteer army the world has ever seen, they charged him with neglecting the one thing upon which any possible hope of British success on land could be based—an adequate supply of high explosive shells.

The one inexplicable incident is Premier Asquith's statement "upon the highest possible authority" that neither Great Britain nor her Allies had been hampered by lack of munitions—a statement directly contradicted by his recent frantic appeals to the workmen of England to mobilize for the supply of munitions.

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 27.—The Kaiser will go down in history as William the Great, if the events of the first year appeal as vividly to the imagination of future Germans as they do to the generation that is living through the present world conflict.

Fredrick the Great held Europe at bay, and saved Prussia through seven years of strife. His descendant, who now holds the Hohenzollern throne, has more than equalled Frederick's task, because Frederick had England with him, there was then no United States to furnish Germany's munitions. Nobody expects the present conflict to run seven years, but if the allies can stand a war of that duration, so can Germany with the Kaiser at the head of affairs. When the war started the Emperor William had fallen into disfavor with many of his people for a number of reasons. Some believed he was too autocratic, others thought he wastoo well disposed toward the English, and still others thought he was afraid of the military machine Germany had developed and was too prejudiced in favor of peace at any price ever to permit the machine to test itself. The early days of the war, when enemy after enemy took the field against Germany, people talked disparagingly of the Emperor as an incompetent, who had played his cards badly and had overestimated Germany's strength.

But when victories began to be won, and when the enemy first here and then there was rolled back the popular opinion of the Kaiser began to change. People confessed the Kaiser, and the comments of neutral nations, added to his popularity at home, until now, the Kaiser is the idol of his nation. He is regarded as the embodiment of German virtues, the representative of German might and power. The nation agrees he has not abused the absolutely autocratic power he has wielded since last August, but has used his authority to meet every crisis confronting Germany in a manner that wins unanimous approval. If the war ends under conditions substantially as they are now, Germany will have saved herself, and will have demonstrated er powers so convincingly that the Kaiser, who is now responsible for all things in the Empire must be given the title of "The Great."

The Kaiser, in particular, has inspired Germans with confidence in outcome of the war. His calm assertions of victory have been followed by deeds substantially his words so often that he is not only the ruler but also the prophet of his people. When the war began, few Germans, deep down in their hearts, believed the Teutonic Empire had even a fair chance of succeeding. That is why there was so much hysteria last August, and why departing subjects of the enemy powers were so frequently insulted. That is why also the Germans lost their heads in Belgium and adopted a system of terrorism. That is why, too, the hymn of hate directed against England was so popular.

Now, however, after a year of strife, Germany has recovered the confidence and believes in the Kaiser. The fear of last summer has departed and the Germans are no longer saying "God punish England." Instead of the former hatred of England there is now developing a curious kind of contempt, mingled with self-amazement that the Germans should so boldly have misjudged the English. Nothing more remarkable has happened in Germany during the year than the change of popular opinion concerning England. The might of the British Empire was magnified quite out of proportion to its actual power, the Germans now are saying.

This war was worth the fighting so say the Germans, if only because it has pricked the bubble of British strength. England will never again occupy her old place in the world. The ancient spirit of the English, which the world has been long accustomed to taking at its own valuation, has been found to be no longer existent. England has lost the war for the allies, in the opinion of German militarists, and by doing so, has irreparably stained her own prestige.

The past year's events say the Germans, have provided a complete test of the comparative merits of Germanic and British civilizations. Germany has revealed her possession of organization ability, of initiative, of austere patriotism, of inventiveness, of an unbroken spirit under adversity, of discipline, of an ability to meet every problem the war has thrust upon her.

Where Germany has succeeded England has failed. The English (in the opinion of Germans) have proved themselves to be boasters, muddlers and uninspired in any of their works. They have been revealed to the world as a people undermined by discontent, unpatriotic, so prejudiced that they cannot even now accept the undoubted fact that their demigod Lord Kitchener, failed them in their hour of need. The upper classes have shown bravery but no qualities of intellectual and masterful leadership, and their lower classes are taking advantage of the perplexities of the war to strike for higher wages!

The Germans are asking what this past year of warfare has shown the English to possess which the world would be better for the keeping. What can the world better be rid of ask the Germans, at this anniversary time, the qualities the English have shawon since last August, or the qualities the Germans have shown? Here is a Germany, beginning the second year of her war against the world, full of confidence with increased faith in the destiny of the fatherland.

U.S. INSPECTORS ARE KEPT BUSY

Guerrilla Warfare With Smugglers is Constantly Carried on in "Hell's Hundred"

DIRECTED FROM LOS ANGELES

Two Border Towns Are Beyond All Law And Conflicts Between Elements Frequent

(By United Press.)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27. — "Hell's Hundred" is what old timers call the 100 miles of Mexican border between Tia Juan and Mexicali, the "two toughest towns" on the American continent.

And on that 100 mile stretch—America's last frontier—a handful of United States inspectors is today fighting a guerrilla warfare with scores of white, black and tan smugglers whose sole object in life is to beat Uncle Sam's custom laws.

Far away from telegraphs and telephones there are almost daily skirmishes. They never break into the newspapers. Gangs of frightened, sheeplike Chinese are rounded up sometimes while the agents attempting to sneak them over the border flee with bullets droning above them. Desperadoes with automobile cargoes of opium match their motors against the ponies of the inspectors and again the bullets drone. Battles have been fought in the desert mountains and in the alkaline beds of dried up oceans. Occasionally someone is killed, or a batch of prisoners captured. But the censorship of lonely wastes devoid of telegraph or telephone proves a stronger bar to news than the censorship of Europe.

The war is directed from Los Angeles, "Jack" Elliott, collector of the Port of Los Angeles, is commander-in-chief. He sits in his office and gets reports. He issues secret orders. Sometimes bronzed youths with bandaged hands or heads confer with him seriously. Once every few weeks he sheds his business suit, dons khaki and a sombrero and disappears, to return awhile later, sunburned, saddle-sore and determined.

"The boys are doing well," he says. It means volumes. It means that here and there along the empty stretches at "Hell's Hundred" young Americans are slowly trotting their horses, or making their blanket beds with the sky for a roof and the moon for a lamp, shivering by night and sweltering by day, always alert for the purr of a distant motor, the flash of light on the horizon that means smugglers, Chinks—and at fight.

Most of the smugglers have their headquarters in Tia Juana, 14 miles from San Diego, of Mexicali, 100 miles east. Both towns are in the California line. They are utterly beyond all law. Their denizens always face toward California, for to cross the line with contraband means profit.

And between these two outposts of Gehenna and civilized Southern California with its prosaic jitney busses and its little green bungalows there is nothing but this thin line of bronzed young horsemen who watch and fight, take bullets and give them 24 hours a day, unknown and appreciated.

FIERCE FIGHTS IN GALLIPOLI

Soldier Mail Reaching London Indicates There Lies Most Furious Campaign of War

EACH LETTER A THRILL

All The Horrors of Battle in Northern France or on Eastern Front Magnified

BL WILBUR S. FORREST (U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 14 (By Mail).—Echos from the firing lines in the Dardanelles coming back to London today in "soldier mail" proclaim the comparatively small struggle between the Turks and Allies on narrow Gallipoli peninsula the fiercest single campaign of the war.

All the horrors of battle in Northern France and Belgium and on the gigantic eastern front are repeated and magnified on Gallipoli. Every soldier letter has a new thrill. That the Turks are a desperate army is admitted in all of them.

The British army on Gallipoli is a wondrous mixture. Fighting beside the turbaned native troops from India are the Irish from Dublin, the famous Munsters and a regiment or two from Cork. Further on down the line are the men from faraway New Zealand and Australia while other trenches hold the British territorials from Manchester, Birmingham, and Liverpool. The kilted Scots from Edinburgh and Glasgow are also there as well as the picturesquely uniformed French Zouaves and bearded regulars of the French contingent taking their chances against the Turks with the British.

The roar of the big naval guns in the straits blend with the smaller noises of artillery on land and the crackle of machine guns and rifle fire.

"The spectacles we see here on land and water would move a heart of flint" writes a member of the Dublin Fusiliers. "No words can describe what we've left behind in our march since we landed here. The shore and sides of the steep cliffs were dotted with the corpses of Turks and British alike. I lost every pal I knew."

A picturesque story was received today from Private A. M. Sampson, 13th Australian battalion. He writes: "Yesterday I was in a charge. I bayoneted a Turk right through the neck. He was the first man I ever killed and the sight made me sick and squeamish. I've tried to sleep since but its hard work for I frequently wake up and seem to feel my bayonet going into that Turk's neck. Ugh! Its beginning to get on my nerves. However, the life here is rather exciting and a bit adventurous. Within sight of our trench is our watchdog warship, patrolling up and down and at intervals letting out 10 inch shells over our heads and into the enemy's trenches. I don't know her name but we call her "Old Four Funnels." I've been wounded. But it was just a scratch of shrapnel on the leg so I haven't bothered to report it. Many of my comrades have done their bit and cashed in their checks. One I especially liked was firing along side of me and exposed himself too long. A bullet passed through his temple. He cashed in at once, but so did the sniper that got him, for I waited for him in the same place fifteen minutes later."

Advices in the same stated that Sampson had been seriously wounded and taken aboard a hospital ship.

A private in the Sixth Manchester Territorials writes: "The countryside is beautiful but the trees are torn by bullets and shells. Gigantic pieces of exploded projectiles from the warships lie about and shrapnel bullets as big as tennis balls dead Turks lie rotting against the scarlet poppies. The scene is both beautiful and horrible."

Private H. J. Forest, also of the Sixth Manchester Regiment writes: "The Sixth Manchesters have lost very heavily both in officers and men. We have been in the firing line for nearly a month. On one occasion the entire line made a general advance. We were the first to leave the trenches. We advanced a short distance and began to dig ourselves in, for the Turks were firing furiously. I had made a good cover when a chap crawled up to me hit in the leg. While I was turning around to give him a first aid dressing, I must have exposed my leg for I felt a sharp pain, I was hit. I could not get away from the location which was dangerously near the enemy trenches. Then the Turks started to advance. Our fellows were forced to retire. Of course they could not take my wounded companion and myself. I was not going to be left for the Turks so I managed to get onto one foot and hopped 150 yards to cover. The Turks were thrown back and my companion was later brought in by stretcher bearers."

The Allies have lost heavily on the peninsula as well as in the straits.

The following narrative was contained in a letter from a sailor of the Battleship Majestic, sunk by the Turks. The sailor had witnessed the sinking of the Bouvet, Irresistible, Ocean, Goliath and Triumph.

"We were getting the torpedo nets aft at 6:32 a. m., on May 27. Suddenly I spotted a submarine just rounding the bows of a troopship off our port beam. I drew the commander's attention to it. He replied 'Yes, here comes the torpedo traveled at a good rate of speed through the water. At 6:33 it struck the Majestic. The poor old ship shook horribly.

"A huge volume of water shot up to port some 200 feet in the air. Our end, like the others, had come at last. Men obeyed orders to the very last minute. All recognized that it would be a fight for life. Everyone was ordered to look about for things that would keep them afloat. Everyone was cool. There was no panic. The transports sent boats. The trawlers and tugs began to move in close. But all of the men had to take to the water to be saved. I took a farewell look at the old ship's deck and dived overboard. I swam to a French tugboat and was taken aboard. At 6:40 we watched the ship heel over. She died game. The Admiral's flag was still flying as she toppled over and turned bottom up. After all the excitement was over I opened my Y. M. C. A. book and these words were before me.

"I have fought a good fight. I have kept th efaith."

EXAMINATION TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Mothers With Eligible Babies Are Urged to be at Test at Graham
High School Building.

THEY ARE CALLED ON PHONE

Women who are promoting the better babies contest were busy Tuesday calling by telephone and calling personally on mothers in Rushville and Rush county who have eligible babies, calling their attention to the fact that the physical and mental test will be held in the Graham high school building Wednesday, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

The examination of babies by Rushville physicians will continue throughout the day as long as there are any babies to be examined. The age limits for the contest are from twelve to thirty-six months, which is twelve months higher than last year, when the contest was held for the first time.

Mothers are urged to remember that even though they may not have been personally invited, they are urged to take their children to the examination tomorrow. No entry blanks were sent out this year because it was thought to be a needless expense. The medals will be awarded Saturday afternoon of the chautauqua.

Bicycles Shall Not be Used.

An order has been issued by the postoffice department at Washington prohibiting the use of bicycles or motorcycles on rural mail routes for carrying the mail. The order will become effective the first of next year. The order says the "two-wheelers" do not have the carrying capacity needed for the parcel post service and do not afford protection for mail in bad weather. The order will affect 8,000 carriers who now use the motorcycle or bicycle. Lon Kennedy is the only carrier here using a motorcycle, but does not ride it in bad weather.

Registration of employees by the Western Electric Company showed nearly 406 missing, but many of the names of these were included in the list of 828 bodies already identified. It was said also that probably a goodly number did not report at the plant, although safe.

The probability of swelling the list above a thousand was suggested by the announcement of detectives from the state attorney's office that they had seized the tickets from passengers boarding the Eastland for the excursion to Michigan City, Ind. They asserted that these tickets numbered 2,550 and did not account for children, musicians and the seventy-two members of the crew. They estimated that the total number of persons aboard the steamer might have been 2,800 or more, instead of 2,480, previously announced by officers of the Indiana Transportation Company.

Robert H. McCreary, deputy collector of customs, who, with two inspectors, counted the passengers as they boarded the Eastland, after reading Mr. Hoyne's statement, declared it was impossible that 2,800 or more persons boarded the ship. He also said it was "false and ridiculous" for Mr. Hoyne to state that children were not counted.

Mr. McCreary said that the 2,550 ticket stubs seized by State's Attorney Hoyne included some of the tickets taken from passengers intended for the steamer Petoskey, another of the excursion ships.

The lessees of the ship asserted that 2,408 passenger tickets had been collected.

State's Attorney MacLay Hoyne, in pursuing his investigation tonight, seized correspondence which had passed between officers of the Western Electric employees' organization, which gave the picnic, and the Indiana Transportation Company, operating the Eastland and four other steamers set aside to carry more than 7,000 persons across the lake.

The state's attorney said this correspondence showed that the steamer company had advised that the more tickets sold the greater would be the rebate paid to the employees' organization. Tickets were to be sold to employees of the Western Electric Company for 75 cents at the factory or $1 at the wharf. According to the state's attorney, the letters showed there would be a rebate of one-third on all tickets over 4,000 and something less on those above 2,500.

TO HELP ENFORCE THE TRAFFIC LAW

Movable Posts Will be Placed at Four Street Intersections to Warn Motorists of Ordinance.

TO SEE IF IT IS PRACTICAL

If City Officials Find Them so, They
May be Stationed at Other Points in the City.

Traffic posts will be placed at four of the street corners in the business district to aid in the enforcement of the traffic ordinance. One of these posts is in place at the corner of Main and Second streets. The post takes the place of a policeman in that drivers, if they pay attention to the post, cannot help but drive to the right and make the square turns in turning from one street into another.

The posts will be placed at the intersections of Morgan and Second streets; Perkins and Second and Main and First streets. The city officials believe these posts will be of great value in helping enforce the ordinance. This "right and left" ordinance has been on the books for several years, but despite this fact, there are drivers of automobiles who pay no attention to the rules when making a turn from one street into another street. The rule is to keep to the right and by going around these posts it is always possible to do this.

The posts will be placed at the different corners in the business district first as an experiment and then if they prove successful may be placed on other corners. The police will begin enforcing the traffic ordinance and with the aid of the posts it is not necessary for a man to be stationed at the corners all the time.

The traffic posts here were made by Superintendent Mahan of the water and light plant and are as those to be found in the larger cities. They are painted a dark red and not built so heavy that they would damage a machine in case of collision. The police would like to figure out some way of placing a red light on top of the posts for use at night.

The new muffler ordinance will go into effect on August 4 and the police are preparing to enforce this law and put a stop to the noise from automobiles.

POLICE ARREST BOY BUT HAVE NO CASE

Clyde Osborn is Held For Time
Tuesday in Connection With Robberies at Claire Smith Home.

HARDIN HAD SUSPICIONS

Clyde Osborn was held for a short time today by the police, who believed he knew something regarding the robbery at the home of Clair Smith in West Second street last Saturday night. He was released without bond and the trial set for Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

Osborn was seen entering his own home Sunday morning about 3:15 o'clock by Policeman Hardin and Hardin's suspicions were aroused. Osborn, instead of going in his front door, used a ladder and went in from a rear window. It was explained to the police that he frequently did this because his mother was afraid to stay at home by herself without locking the front door.

It will be recalled that the Smith home was entered twice last week, the last time being Saturday night, when Smith alleged that his watch was taken. Osborn did not know the reason for his arrest and expressed surprise when told by the police.

First Anniversary of World War

AS SEEN IN FRANCE

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS,
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
(Second Story)

Paris, July 27.—The Great Doubt has been lifted from the heart of France.

The accomplishment of this was the grandest deed of French arms in all the year of Armageddon which began a year ago this week. In history the feat will be known as the history of the Battle of the Marne.

Not only did this victory probably decide the fate of France geographically, but its influence upon the spirit of the country was, and still is incalculable. For notwithstanding the "solidarity" accomplished instantly and spontaneously on Aug. 1, the day the General Mobilization Order was posted, a great doubt weighed like lead on the hearts of those who marched away singing as well as those who stayed behind and wept.

Everybody remembered 1870. The old remembered the swift defeat in the Franco-Prussian war and the horrible nightmare of blunders. The young had heard the story time and again. The French in 1870 were totally unprepared for war, were badly equipped and badly led.

TO ARRANGE FOR ENCAMPMENT

Members of Ivy Company No. 35, U.
R. K. of P. Will Discuss French
Licks Meeting Thursday Night.

WILL INCLUDE TWO STATES

General Trabue Announces There
Will be no Competitive Drills—
Prizes on Attendance.

Members of Ivy company No. 35, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, will meet Thursday night to determine who is going to the bi-ennial encampment of the Knights from Indiana and Illinois which will begin at French Lick the fifteenth of August.

S. L. Trabue of this city, who is a member of the staff of Major General Loomis, commanding the Uniform Rank of the United States and Canada, with the rank of general, said today that he hoped to see a big representation from his company.

The encampment will be different this year. There will be no competitive drills as heretofore, but prizes will be awarded on the basis of attendance and inspection, fifty per cent on each.

General Trabue said that Ivy company would compete for the prize and that it would be in class A. The prize will be $250, something worth working for.

The last bi-ennial encampment was held at Danville, Ill., and it is pretty sure that if members of Ivy company see a chance of any more experiences like those they enjoyed at Danville, they will most likely arrange for a trip to French Lick. Members of Ivy company still talk about the Danville encampment.

General Trabue has received word that Major General Loomis will be present. When Supreme Chancellor Brigham Young was here the other day, a guest at the home of James E. Watson, General Trabue saw him and learned that Mr. Young would also attend the encampment.

There is every reason to believe, it is stated, that the encampment will be one of the most largely attended, outside of a national encampment, that was ever held. It is expected that at least 2,500 uniformed men will be present. The Kentucky brigade has sent word that it will be present and the Ohio brigade has also been invited.

Tom Taggart has thrown open his golf links in front of his hotel for the use of the Knights and promises to make things lively for them. This camp will be known as Camp Hunt and will be under the command of Brigadier General Gray of Indiana, and Brigadier General Bertoni of Illinois.

In addition to the prominent officials already mentioned, there will be present: Governor Ralston, of Indiana, Governor McCreary of Kentucky, Governor Dunne, of Illinois, and Governor Willis of Ohio; also, Supreme Vice Chancellor Brown, Grand Chancellor Williamson, of Illinois, Grand Chancellor Brown of Indiana. A great many of the lodge members will be accompanied by their families, who will be accommodated at the hotels near the encampment field. Thousands of dollars in cash prizes will be given as well as many other prizes for the best drilled teams in attendance.

BOSTON SEXTET IS UNUSUAL ONE

Harry Dunbar Writes That Musicians Coming Here Held Audiences Other Places Spellbound.

HEARD THEM RECENTLY

Other Attractions Fourth Day Will
be Dr. Gabriel Maguire and
Dr. Carolyn Geisel.

The fourth day of the Rush county chautauqua—Wednesday—which opens next Sunday, will be as interesting as any of the rest. For that day chautauqua patrons will have the opportunity to hear a concert by the Boston Symphony Sextette, a lecture by Carolyn Geisel and a prelude by the sextette and an illustrated lecture by Dr. Gabriel Maguire, F. R. G. S., a noted explorer, at night.

The attraction of Dr. Maguire does exist alone because of the fact that he has spent six years in the jungles of Africa as an explorer, but also on the fact that he is an Irishman with the native Irish wit. His lecture is entertaining as well as educational. His rare combination of rich humor and common sense, his unconventional methods and the worth of his message are expected to make his appearance here one that will long be remembered.

Some exquisite music from the Boston Sextette is promised. E. B. Thomas, chairman of the talent committee this year, is in receipt of a letter from Harry Dunbar, a recognized authority on chautauqua musical organizations.

Mr. Dunbar has become so proficient in the art of preparing musical organizations for the chautauqua that his label on them always means that they are exceptional.

The Sextette is composed of a group of musicians from the Boston Symphony orchestra, which is famed on this and other continents.

"The Boston Symphony Sextette is the most magnificent musical attraction which has ever appeared on the chautauqua platform," writes Mr. Dunbar.

At Evansville, Ind., the 19th inst., they simply carried the audience by storm, and at New Albany 2000 people sat without the slightest movement or sound when they played.

"Remember they are not a six piece orchestra but an ensemble of the very finest players now living and are so acknowledged. They simply entrance hearers by the marvelous beauty of tone and execution, and the completeness of their musical effect. Their selections are for the most part absolutely new and composed for their instrumentation. The music is not loud and the platform manager should, before they commence, make a good talk setting out these facts, and insist on absolute silence. The brilliance of their playing is wonderful. Every place will want them back. All are great soloists. The double bass solo is great and the flute solos gorgeously beautiful. This company sets a new pace in chautauqua music. If anybody says they don't like the sort of "classical" music these fine men play, we cannot imagine any human art that would move them."

BELIEVES NO BREAK IS DUE

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Berlin, (By Way of The Hague), July 27.—"Germany in her reply to the American note must stand firm."

Under secretary for foreign affairs Zimmerman today read me that excerpt from a letter, one of the many he and other officials have received from German citizens, indicating that the people will not sanction the giving up of Germany's submarine war.

"Do the future relations between Germany and America look as dark as some declare?" he was asked.

"No, no," was the quick response. "In this day and age is it possible for two great nations to differ without coming to a break. Germany will never do anything to bring that about. You can assure the American people of that."

"But in all probability we shall answer in the manner the writer of this letter calls for: 'Be firm.'"

"We can never give up submarine warfare. You can see that the people here will back us up."

SUPPLEMENT TO BRITISH NOTE DUE

Optimists See in it Hope For Ending Naval Difficulties With
Britain and Germany.

MAY HINT AT MEDIATION

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 27.—The state department today received a cable from British foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey, asking that the British note received yesterday relative to the order in council be withheld from the public. The message said a supplement to the note is being prepared.

Officials saw in this cable a faint ray of hope that a way was opening out of America's difficulties both with Britain and Germany.

They asked whether it meant that the British were willing to modify their "starvation order" against Germany. Though few believed this could be the case, some optimistic people suggested that the supplement might contain a hint which would make it possible for Washington to mediate between London and Berlin concerning naval warfare. If that should prove true, they believed the crisis would pass. The British note will not be made public tomorrow as planned.

RECOVERED DEAD IS NOW 828

Witness at Coroner's Inquest Says
Passengers Were Packed Too
Tightly to Get on One Side.

(By United Press.)

Chicago, July 27.—"No official incompetence will be assumed and none will be pardoned," was the gist of what Secretary of Commerce Redfield would say upon his arrival here today to look into the department's phase of the Eastland tragedy. Secretary Redfield said he would confer at once with federal officials.

Two more bodies were recovered from the Eastland early today. The total recovered dead is now 828. At least 400 bodies and possibly 500 are still in the hulk. This was the estimate made by Coroner Hoffman after a conference with divers and police officials today.

Most of the scores of bodies still held in the ball room of the Eastland are women and children. This fact was developed at the coroner's inquest today by Robert Moore, forty-five years, a traveling salesman, of Chicago, and a passenger on the Eastland. He was the first witness.

"I boarded the boat at seven o'clock," said Moore. "About ten minutes later there was a noticeable list. It could not have been due to crowding on one side, for the crowd on the boat was too great. Passengers were packed so tight they were necessarily evenly distributed."

Moore said even at that time passengers were being admitted aboard five and six abreast.

"I don't see how it was possible for less than three or four inspectors to count them," swore the witness.

"I went to the dance floor and had just noticed that the crowd of women with babies in their arms and children under 12 years were packed too tightly to pass through, when she went over."

Divers today reported scores of bodies still jammed into the great ball room.

Moore said there must have been at least five hundred in the dance room alone.

A coroner's jury will start an inquest at once, while Federal departments, headed by Secretary Redfield and officers from the city police department and the office of state's attorney will gather evidence, holding formal inquiry in abeyance until the inquest has progressed as far.

RAISING POULTRY FOR PROFIT

By John Wilcox

To preserve eggs for future use they must be kept at a low temperature in pure air and a slightly moist atmosphere. The market man accomplishes this by cold storage. Unfortunately, however, he must get his egg supply from the farms and can not control the conditions under which they are gathered. The result is he can not pay a good price for what he gets. He must make allowance for all loss due to spots and rots, blood rings and floats, everyone of which is due to poor handling before he gets them. If the farmer will see to it that the eggs he markets are properly cared for, his own profits will be greater.

Better methods of caring for eggs also make possible a constant home supply of sweet fresh eggs during the time when hens are not laying. While a farmer has no cold storage plant, modern methods of egg preservation are quiet as efficient a means toward the end.

The are various egg preservations in common use, but a few are satisfactory. The old time method of preserving eggs in bran, oats and salt is pretty well extinct. Eggs preserved in this manner usually show considerably evaporation and in case of bran or oats usually have a musty flavor. Those packed in salt generously taste salty. The best methods seems to be something that will exclude the air by filling up the pores in the egg shell, thus preventing evaporation and at the same time excluding moulds.

One of the best preservatives is the saturated lime solution. This is easily made by slacking some new lime in water. After it is thoroughly slacked and has settled, stir repeatedly and allow it to settle the clear liquid over the eggs placed in crocks or wooden tubs. Two pounds of lime will give enough solution to preserve thirty dozen eggs. Eggs thus preserved are good in quality and flavor provided, of course, the eggs were strictly fresh and of prime quality when immersed in the lime water.

The best preservative, however, seems to be the water glass solution. Eggs will keep indefinitely and after ten months are for all purposes, except poaching, quite as good as a fresh egg and but little if any inferior in flavor. The process is simple. The eggs should be gathered daily from clean nests and preferably should be infertile. Old, cracked or thin-shelled eggs should not be used. (To be continued next week.)

USE BILLBOARDS FOR DRY FIGHT

Temperance Advocates in England Using This Means to Help Their Cause

LARGE FUND BEING RAISED

(By United Press.) London, July 16: (By Mail)—If printer's ink induces men to join the army, why not utilize it to make them stop drinking?

Following the example of the War Office in conducting its recruiting campaign by means of advertising, temperance advocates purpose to correct the effect of the drink evil on the output of munitions by similar means.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who devised the scheme, is now raising funds for the placarding of the districts most concerned with posters reading thus:

"Drink to you means death to our soldiers."

"They gave up their lives for you. Won't you give up your drink for them?"

"The sober workman fights for Britain. The drunken workman fights for Germany."

"You will be Healthier without drink—you will be Happier without it—you will be Richer without it. Sign off for the war."

Said Sir Arthur, explaining his plan today: "I want to make it impossible for a man to enter a saloon without his eye meeting a reminder of his duty to his country and his mates in France."

SOME INDIANA PEOPLE GET QUICK RELIEF

Hundreds of Indiana people have found relief from stomach and digestive troubles by the use of May's Wonderful Remedy.

This remedy is safe and efficient. The first dose gives results. And the treatment is not long. It has a wonderful record.

Here are the statements of two who have used and proven the merits of the remedy:

CHARLES INMAN, 424 East Chestnut, St. Hartford, City, Ind.—"Four doctors said they could not cure me unless I went to Fort Wayne to be operated on. I took your treatment in three weeks I went to work and haven't missed but a half day since."

WALTER SPRAY, 1011 South Second, St. Frankfort, Ind.—"Before I took your medicine I suffered a great deal, but since I took the first dose I have not had a bad spell. I feel it is even more than you claim."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and its cure requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, it acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Amusements

The Princess offers a three reel feature "In The Days of Famine" for the program tonight. Dorothy Kelly, James Morrison and George Cooper are featured and it is said to be a fine drama. Tomorrow night the fourth installment of "The Goddess" will be shown.

The Mystic will show a Reliance drama "The Lucky Transfer" for the first picture tonight. It is said to tell a thrilling story. The second is a drama entitled "Do Unto Others." The last is a comedy "Beating Hearts and Carpets." Tomorrow night the two reel feature "Her Buried Past" will be shown.

The Gem will show a wild animal drama for tonight, a picture that is said to be the equal of anything of the sort ever shown here. Marie Walcamp will have the leading role in this thrilling Bison picture. Advance notices say that full-grown man-eating lions and lionesses, elephants and other wild animals that frequent the jungles will have a part. The picture shows the man-eaters attacking people, not like the proverbial milk-fed lions do, but with the deadly intensity that characterizes the attack of a wild animal on a human being. "In the Hills Beyond," with Sydney Ayres in the leading part, will be seen tonight. Charlie Chaplin will appear in a comedy Wednesday and Harry Myer and Rosemary Theby in "Baby" Thursday night.

The Gem management announced today that one coupon will be given with each five cent admission and that six of them are good for one five cent admission.

PLAN TO REORGANIZE ARMY

Secretary of War Will Present Them to Wilson

(By United Press.) Washington, July 27.—Secretary of War Garrison and on his return from Sanbright, N. J., today called a conference with Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge, general Scott, chief of staff, and General Bliss, assistant chief, to go over a tentative draft of an army reorganization plan which the secretary expects to submit to the president on the latter's return from Cornish.

The city fire department Tuesday was testing out an arrangement to pump water from a fire plug with the fire engine. Such a thing could be done in a case of an emergency when there was no fire pressure in the mains. It was stated today that if the engine could have been hooked to the fire plug the night of the Masonic Temple burned, it might have been saved.

BOYS' JUDGING CONTEST AT STATE FAIR

One of the best educational features the Indiana State Fair offers to the farm boys of the state is the judging contest, in which the boys show their ability to judge livestock and grains, the awards being free scholarships at Purdue University. Since this feature was started some years ago about twenty farm boys have won and used the Purdue scholarships, and to them has been opened the way to obtain an education along agricultural lines which might not otherwise have been available to them.

The boys who do not win scholarships find it worth while to enter the contest, for it gives them opportunity closely to inspect the high grade stock and farm products at the fair. The number of farm boys in the contest increases from year to year, and they inspect the same stock and grains that the regular judges pass upon. Four scholarships will be awarded at the coming fair, the contest to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 7, under the general direction of Prof. G. I. Christie, of Purdue University. It is open to all Indiana boys of 16 to 20 years of age who have not attended an agricultural college. Applications for entry blanks should be sent to Charles Downing, secretary of the State Fair, Indianapolis.

What Mgr. Razor Has to Say About Silent Dramas

I've just seen "Baby," a two reel comedy with Harry Myer and Rosemary Theby, which we will show on Thursday night. It's one of the simplest stories in the world. It gave me one of the CLEANEST and longest laughs I ever had in my life. It deals with a young father who is so dippy about his baby son that he makes a perfect fool of himself at home and at his office. There's no complicated plot to follow. You don't have to sit on the edge of your seat waiting for the crool villun to rescue the pore goil or anything of that sort. It's one of those easy-going, darn-fool, light comedies with just enough of the farcial stuff in it to satisfy you. Take my word for it, it's some comedy.

Respectfully,
CHAS. R. RASOR.

John Sharp Admits It
 Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi is credited with having told his Democratic brethren during the last session of Congress: "The poor, dear, old foolish Democratic party is going through the same game that she can be generally trusted to go through," said Senator Williams to his Democratic colleagues. "You can't govern the country. You are incompetent."
 Some measure of that incompetency has been referred to hitherto in stories pointing out specific errors in tariff bill due to inexcusable blundering. Mistakes in other laws have been discussed in more recent articles. A brief resume of these mistakes is given herewith, to be followed later by instances of other faulty Democratic legislation.
 No. 8 The provision enacted by the Democratic Congress to build up the American merchant marine utterly failed to achieve its purpose, and conferred the proposed benefit instead upon competing vessels of other countries, giving to foreigners the profits from high freight rates.

The Price She Pays.
 There is hardly an American woman nowadays who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill-health. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs which brings glorious health to suffering women.

At last we have the promised revelations of Becker, the Police Lieutenant who is under sentence of death for instigating the murder of a gambler. But the trouble is that he reveals nothing of the consequence that the public did not know. His so-called revelations have too much to do with dead men and shed too little light on present conditions in the underworld. In short, he has not rendered a service big enough to make it probable that the Governor will spare his life. But it is clear that if Becker had told all he knew at his trial, he would not now be on his way to the death chair. That he has told all now, is far from clear.

"Peace the Unattainable." This was the title of a cartoon in the New York "World." Why unattainable? Every good thing that this world has achieved has been considered impossible when proposed. But the visionary enthusiasts have gone right on striving for the "Unattainable" until they have achieved it.

Are women more thrifty than men. It seems so, for a model loan concern reports that of 2,444 borrowers, only 122 were women. But 829 were government or municipal employees!

DEMOCRATS TO HAVE NEW PAPER
 Anti-Taggart Forces Backing Weekly Publication to be Edited by Horace Herr.

WILL SUPPORT JOHN W. KERN
 Will Stand For Several Non-Partisan Issues Including State wide Prohibition.
 (By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 27.—The newspaper stork is about to visit Indianapolis. A Democratic weekly, promising to take an active part in state politics, is under way and probably will make its appearance the first week in September. Horace H. Herr, well known magazine and newspaper writer, is interested in the project and will be in charge of the editorial policy of the publication. Herr, until recently, was editor of the Indiana Daily Times. He left the Times because of a disagreement with owners as to the paper's policy.

The weekly will represent the anti-Taggart forces of the Democrats and will be the first publication of state-wide circulation doing so. It is said that not a dollar of the money furnishing the financial support has come from any one supporting the Taggart organization.

Among those who have invested in the new venture are Jas. H. McGill and George H. Dodge of Valparaiso, John R. Jones, father of the new primary law, James K. Risk, of Lafayette and others.

The paper will stand for several non-partisan issues such as the revision of the state constitution and prohibition. Several Republicans interested in these issues are said to have helped to finance the project.

A United Press reporter, asked Mr. Herr what would be the attitude of the publication towards the senatorial candidacy of John W. Kern and he said:

"I have considered John Kern one of the most progressive democrats in the state. Sometimes I have felt that he might be more aggressive against the arbitrary methods of the organization that has brought the party into ill repute, yet whenever there has been a real show down, Senator Kern has stood with the progressive element of the party. I see no reason at this time why we should not support Kern."

HOOSIER HISTORY

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission)

A Pioneer Menu

"Bounteous feasting always accompanied hard labor of neighborhood gatherings. A meal of venison, roast turkey, fried chicken, hominy, ham and eggs, potatoes, wild hog, steaming corn bread, hot biscuits, gingerbread, preserves, jellies, tarts, pies and good milk and butter, all set on a large table around which the workers gathered, could not fail to satisfy the appetite of an epicure. Total abstinence was not in fashion in those days, and the farmer who did not supply his hands with liquor was considered stingy indeed. A jug of whiskey was considered necessary for any undertaking of importance. The beverage was homemade and often of such strength that it was likely to sour or freeze." Frederick Vogel in the Indiana Magazine of History.

ANOTHER ELECTION

(By United Press.)
 Sullivan, Ind., July 27.—The saloon men made a desperate effort here today to put Haddon township in Sullivan county back into the wet column. Though the township voted dry by 234 majority two years ago, the wets hoped to swing the vote of the miners to their side. The result will effect the towns of Paxton and Carlyle.

WATERFRONT CAT HAILED AS WISEST OF ALL FELINES
 San Francisco, July 27.—Jimmy, a waterfront cat, is today hailed by seamen here as the wisest feline in the world. They assert that Jimmy has the second sight, which enables her to foresee coming events and govern her movements accordingly. This reputation is fastened on Jimmy as a result of the trouble which descended upon the steamer "O. M. Clark" recently off the Channel Islands.
 For years Jimmy resided in the hold of the "O. M. Clark." She feasted on fat and juicy rats and enjoyed life. On several occasions, however, she gave birth to large families of kittens, and was beloved by every mariner who trod the good ship's deck.
 On the day the vessel left port for its last voyage Captain F. N. Higgins dropped a shipping register on the wharf. It fell open at the signal code page and revealed an arrangement of flags meaning "I am starving, come at once."
 Horrified at this evil omen, Captain Higgins tucked the book under his arm and fled to his ship. Just as he crossed the gang-plank he met Jimmy majestically departing.
 "Pussy, pussy," wheedled Captain Higgins. But the cat remained obdurate. Jimmy regarded Captain Higgins fixedly for a moment, raised her eyebrows significantly, and stalked over to a steam schooner moored in Oakland Estuary, where she took up her residence in a coal box and refused to be lured back to her old home.
 Captain Higgins set sail. The ship was blown off her course, and so beaten and buffeted by the howling storms that, in mid-ocean, her crank-shaft broke and she wallowed in the trough of the sea, helpless.
 Food and water ran low. First Mate McAllister and four men put out in a small boat. They arrived at Port San Luis, weak and starving. Meanwhile the crew of the "Clark" had rigged a sail and, the vessel limped into San Diego and then to Oakland.
 Jimmy with several small Jimmies arrived on the steam schooner a few days later.

COURT MARTIAL TRIAL FOR BALL

National Guardsman, Who Killed Private, Will Be Given Hearing on Murder Charge.

HE WAS DOING GUARD DUTY

Case Was Dismissed in Criminal Court and Much Debated Question Will Be Settled.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, July 27.—Edwin Ball, the national guardsman who shot and killed Walter Dowell, private of the guard, during the camp of instruction of the I. N. G. in 1913, will be tried by court martial in the near future. This statement was made to the United Press yesterday by Governor Ralston.

The governor said he would soon order the establishment of a military court to try Ball for murder. With this trial of Ball there will be settled in Indiana the much debated question whether a national guardsman, acting under orders to bring in a prisoner, can be held for murder in case he kills the prisoner in the performance of his duty.

Dowell, whose home was in Madison, Ind., was supposed to have been instrumental in smuggling liquor from Indianapolis into the encampment at Fort Harrison. Ball was a sergeant of the guard and on the night of July 21, 1913 was doing provost duty. Ball saw Dowell alight from a car and ordered him to stop. Dowell ran and Ball fired causing a wound from which Dowell died in a few days.

Ball was indicted by a grand jury for murder. The case dragged for a long time. Special Judge Haek ruled that criminal court had concurrent jurisdiction with the court martial, but the case was never set for trial. Haek nolle pressed the indictment July 3 of this year acting on a motion of Prosecutor Stevenson. The motion stated that the criminal court had no jurisdiction and that the state had not sufficient evidence to convict.

Ball's case has been the absorbing topic among national guardsmen for two years. In different parts of the state they have sided for and against Ball, with the result that the impression has developed the case is an awkward one to handle from a political point of view.

HELEN KELLER CAN TELL

SIZE OF HER AUDIENCES.

Helen Keller, who is perhaps the most talked of woman in America today, comes to the Rush County Chautauqua, on August 3d, to give her lecture entitled "Happiness." After one of her lectures someone asked Miss Keller if she could tell whether her audience were large or small, and in her answer showed what a remarkable use she makes of her own senses.

"Yes, it was a large audience," she said, "I can tell by the vibrations of many feet in action, and then the air is dense and warm when there are many people in the room."

"Can you tell if people are applauding you?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied, "by the vibration of the air."

Her listeners wanted to applaud, but were interrupted by another question.

"Can you tell if your audience is interested?"

"Oh yes, they always are."

And one wonders how anyone could help but be interested by the genius, a genius all the more strongly appreciated after one has listened to the story of her life, as told in the lectures.

OUR MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of this before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder is troubling you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys; they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

OVER THOUSAND AUTOS IN COUNTY

Records at Secretary of State's Office Show Frank Buell Was First to Get License.

THE EXACT NUMBER IS 1,044

There are one thousand and forty-four automobiles registered from this county in the secretary of state's office in Indianapolis, that many owners having purchased state licenses to run their machines during the present year. These statistics have been prepared by a circular advertising concern of Indianapolis which has compiled such lists for automobile concerns and other lines of business for years.

Frank Buell, living east of the city, was the first Rush county person to procure a license for his automobile in 1915. William G. Smith of this city got a license a few days ago, bringing the number up to 1,044.

Of the 83,000 automobiles registered in Indiana so far this year, approximately 30,000 of them are a popular priced car. There were only 65,000 licenses taken out in 1914, showing that the number of cars registered this year will be almost twice as great as last year.

First Anniversary of War

Their plans lacked co-hesion. Generals fought independently, one of the other. Treason was laid at the door of one and altogether it was a terrible mess in which the poor soldiers ever had the slightest chance notwithstanding a courage which wrung from even the Prussians the exclamation: "Oh, what brave fellows!"

So, last August, when the soldiers started for the war, each one bore in his heart a burden heavier than then knapsack on his back: Would history repeat itself? Would 1914 be another 1870? Was France better prepared this time? Would she be better led? Were her generals equal to the great task ahead? If not, then—

The troopers dared not let their minds run beyond this point. Individually the most intelligent soldiers in the world, they have the other curse and blessing of civilization; an imagination; so they sang and quit thinking; they joked with one another, never admitting even to themselves—let alone to their companions—that the doubt was there.

Back home the hearts of mothers, fathers, wives, sisters and sweethearts were troubled by the unexpressed dread lest 1914 prove another 1870. And if such should prove to be the case—

They, too, smiled and talked cheerfully of a new and irresistible France. All knew, those who remained waiting as well as those who went to war, that for 44 years Germany had been living, eating, sleeping, drinking, dreaming war and that this war had come. What about France? Who was General Joffre? Who were the other generals? Newspapers had but recently declared that France was unprepared was this true? And all went on being troubled in secret lest France should again prove unready.

After vague news reached Paris that General Joffre was in retreat from Charleroi, the 1870 bugaboo loomed bigger and bigger. Maubeuge was invested; Lille was occupied. Then there came silent, tense days, without any real news. The government moved to Bordeaux; the Germans were now in Maubeuge, Compiègne, Soissons, Rheims, Chalons, Epernay, Lunéville, Verdun and Nancy were seriously menaced. Paris it seemed, was doomed and Uhlans were reported to be at the gates. The worst fears of soldiers and homefolks seemed realized. It looked like another 1870, only worse. Still there was no panic. There was the exodus of thousands of people who objected to living in Paris during a German occupation, but the city was calm. France's "sacred union" held firm.

But the Doubt, instilled into the mind of France by 1870, was there, galling and real. The people could not know that General Joffre was later to be called a genius. They could only wonder if his retreat was strategy or incompetency. The censorship was strict and they had few facts to base opinion on. They did not know the Battle of the Marne was being fought, nor that Joffre had performed, by winning a victory there, a sort of eighth wonder of the world. Yet this was true. General Bonnal said of this battle:

"This is the first time to my knowledge that a great army, retreating and fighting at the same time and for eight days in succession, was able to furnish the effort by itself to transform its long and painful retreat into an irresistible offensive."

Yet that is what the French army was able to do. Through this victory a new France was born. The Great Doubt was lifted, the 1870 bugaboo vanished. The people were given confidence in the army, the army in itself.

Henceforth, whatever may happen to the French soldier, he will refuse to be discouraged. He can advance, retreat or doggedly hold what he has won, any or all, with tenacity and good cheer. He has faith in his officers and faith in himself. He knows the war may be long, but he grins and grits his teeth: "We'll get 'em at last!" he says.

The ghost of 1870 has been laid.

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

BY ED L. KEEN

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

London, July 27.—After a year at war, the British Empire has somewhat less than three quarters of a million troops in the field, its Allies have approximately ten million.

The British front in the western theatre is about forty miles in length; the lines of the other Allies east and west, including Serbia and Montenegro, cover some sixteen miles. As the ratio of troops employed is one to fourteen and the ratio of mileage is one to forty, there appears to be some justification for the complaints recently made—quite unofficially, of course, both in France and Russia, that England is not doing her share of the work.

But the question as to whether England is fulfilling her obligations should be considered in the light of her promises. On this basis, she has delivered more than was specified in the contract. There were two clauses in the secret agreement made with France long before the war started:

England would take care of the seas.

She would send an expeditionary force to France of 120,000 men.

That's all there was to it. She has carried out the first clause to the letter; she has sent nearly six times as many men to the firing line as she bargained for, and she is still sending them as fast as they can be trained.

Only the other day, the Temps of Paris in an obviously inspired editorial commenting on recent tributes paid to France by the British press, made these significant remarks: "Frankness should be mutual. If on the land the support of our British allies is still only limited, we must not forget that on the seas it is they who have had much the heaviest task. If at the beginning of the war we were able to complete the equipment of our army with a rapidity which was not one of the German staff's least surprises, we owe it to the fleet which rendered us masters of the seas." The Temps then admits that to this capital support on the sea, the British Empire has brought its industrial and financial resources, "while its military effort on land has really surpassed all forecasts."

There probably always will be some difference as to whether it was British valor or German blundering that saved Paris in the early days of the war. Perhaps it was the two. Anyhow, Paris was saved, and Britishers at least always will give the lion's share of the credit to Field Marshal French, his generals and his soldiers. But even if the salvation of Paris was not due to the British, there is no question that they and they alone saved Calais and the other channel ports. Of course in accomplishing this, England has done herself a greater service than she has the French.

Since the failure of the Paris attack, Germany's main effort has been concentrated in the direction of Calais, and that is the reason why, until he has received sufficient reinforcement, General French will be unable to extend is front. The fate of the British Empire rests upon the holding of those forty miles.

All idea of the "big Spring drive" upon which the military writers had fed the imagination of the British public for months was abandoned at Neuve Chapelle, when at the cost of 13,000 men, the British barely made a dent in the German line of highly fortified trenches. In what was accomplished the Neuve Chapelle offensive was in a sense a victory; in what it failed to do, it was a defeat—for Lille was objective and the Germans are still firmly planted in Lillie.

Then after the second battle of Ypres, in which the Germans first used asphyxiating gases, came the battle of La Passee. This showed the British public why the "big drive" had become impossible. The British and French troops were to make a joint advance after a preliminary bombardment for three hours of the German trenches and the field of wire entanglement intervening. In that time the French fired nearly 200,000 high explosive projectiles; in one hour the British had exhausted their supply of 20,000 high explosives and the rest of the time used shrapnel. Result: The French infantry advanced two miles into trenches that had been practically cleared, with a loss of only two thousand; the British lost 15,000 men in attempting to take trenches that hadn't been cleared.

A newspaperman witnessed this battle. He told the public through the medium of the London Times the reason why the British had failed starting the scandal that disrupted the formation of a coalition ministry sheared Lord Kitchener's wings and created the new Department of Munitions, with Lloyd George at its head.

Somebody had blundered. Lord Northcliffe's newspapers fastened responsibility on Kitchener. While giving him due credit for his magnificent work in raising organizing and training the largest volunteer army the world has ever seen, they charged him with neglecting the one thing upon which any possible hope of British success on land could be based—an adequate supply of high explosive shells.

The one inexplicable incident is Premier Asquith's statement "upon the highest possible authority" that neither Great Britain nor her Allies had been hampered by lack of munitions—a statement directly contradicted by his recent frantic appeals to the workmen of England to mobilize for the supply of munitions.

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 27.—The Kaiser will go down in history as William the Great, if the events of the first year appeal as vividly to the imagination of future Germans as they do to the generation that is living through the present world conflict.

Frederick the Great held Europe at bay, and saved Prussia through seven years of strife. His descendant, who now holds the Hohenzollern throne, has more than equalled Frederick's task, because Frederick had England with him, there was then no United States to furnish Germany's munitions. Nobody expects the present conflict to run seven years, but if the allies can stand a war of that duration, so can Germany with the Kaiser at the head of affairs. When the war started the Emperor William had fallen into disfavor with many of his people for a number of reasons. Some believed he was too autocratic, others thought he was too well disposed toward the English, and still others thought he was afraid of the military machine Germany had developed and was too prejudiced in favor of peace at any price ever to permit the machine to test itself. The early days of the war, when enemy after enemy took the field against Germany, people talked disparagingly of the Emperor as an incompetent, who had played his cards badly and had overestimated Germany's strength.

But when victories began to be won, and when the enemy first here and then there was rolled back the popular opinion of the Kaiser began to change. People confessed the Kaiser, and the comments of neutral nations, added to his popularity at home, until now, the Kaiser is the idol of his nation. He is regarded as the embodiment of German virtues, the representative of German might and power. The nation agrees he has not abused the absolutely autocratic power he has wielded since last August, but has used his authority to meet every crisis confronting Germany in a manner that wins unanimous approval. If the war ends under conditions substantially as they are now, Germany will have saved herself, and will have demonstrated or powers so convincingly that the Kaiser, who is now responsible for all things in the Empire must be given the title of "The Great."

The Kaiser, in particular, has inspired Germans with confidence in outcome of the war. His calm assertions of victory have been followed by deeds substantially his words so often that he is not only the ruler but also the prophet of his people. When the war began, few Germans, deep down in their hearts, believed the Teutonic Empire had even a fair chance of succeeding. That is why there was so much hysteria last August, and why departing subjects of the enemy powers were so frequently insulted. That is why also the Germans lost their heads in Belgium and adopted a system of terrorism. That is why, too, the hymn of hate directed against England was so popular.

Now, however, after a year of strife, Germany has recovered the confidence and believes in the Kaiser. The fear of last summer has departed and the Germans are no longer saying "God punish England." Instead of the former hatred of England there is now developing a curious kind of contempt, mingled with self-amazement that the Germans should so boldly have misjudged the English. Nothing more remarkable has happened in Germany during the year than the change of popular opinion concerning England. The might of the British Empire was magnified quite out of proportion to its actual power, the Germans now are saying.

This war was worth the fighting so say the Germans, if only because it has pricked the bubble of British strength. England will never again occupy her old place in the world. The ancient spirit of the English, which the world has been long accustomed to taking at its own valuation, has been found to be no longer existent. England has lost the war for the allies, in the opinion of German militarists, and by doing so, has irreparably stained her own prestige.

The past year's events say the Germans, have provided a complete test of the comparative merits of Germanic and British civilizations. Germany has revealed her possession of organization ability, of initiative, of austere patriotism, of inventiveness, of an unbroken spirit under adversity, of discipline, of an ability to meet every problem the war has thrust upon her.

Where Germany has succeeded England has failed. The English (in the opinion of Germans) have proved themselves to be boasters, muddlers and uninspired in any of their works. They have been revealed to the world as a people undermined by discontent, unpatriotic, so prejudiced that they cannot even now accept the undoubted fact that their demigod Lord Kitchener, failed them in their hour of need. The upper classes have shown bravery but no qualities of intellectual and masterful leadership, and their lower classes are taking advantage of the perplexities of the war to strike for higher wages!

The Germans are asking what this past year of warfare has shown the English to possess which the world would be better for the keeping. What can the world better be rid of ask the Germans, at this anniversary time, the qualities the English have shown since last August, or the qualities the Germans have shown? Here is a Germany, beginning the second year of her war against the world, full of confidence with increased faith in the destiny of the fatherland.

U.S. INSPECTORS ARE KEPT BUSY

Guerrilla Warfare With Smugglers is Constantly Carried on in "Hell's Hundred"

DIRECTED FROM LOS ANGELES

Two Border Towns Are Beyond All Law And Conflicts Between Elements Frequent

(By United Press.)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27. — "Hell's Hundred" is what old timers call the 100 miles of Mexican border between Tia Juan and Mexicali, the "two toughest towns" on the American continent.

And on that 100 mile stretch—America's last frontier—a handful of United States inspectors is today fighting a guerrilla warfare with scores of white, black and tan smugglers whose sole object in life is to beat Uncle Sam's custom laws.

Far away from telegraphs and telephones there are almost daily skirmishes. They never break into the newspapers. Gangs of frightened, sheeplike Chinese are rounded up sometimes while the agents attempting to sneak them over the border flee with bullets droning above them. Desperadoes with automobile cargoes of opium match their motors against the ponies of the inspectors and again the bullets drone. Battles have been fought in the desert mountains and in the alkaline beds of dried up oceans. Occasionally someone is killed, or a batch of prisoners captured. But the censorship of lonely wastes devoid of telegraph or telephone proves a stronger bar to news than the censorship of Europe.

The war is directed from Los Angeles. "Jack" Elliott, collector of the Port of Los Angeles, is commander-in-chief. He sits in his office and gets reports. He issues secret orders. Sometimes bronzed youths with bandaged hands or heads confer with him seriously. Once every few weeks he sheds his business suit, dons khaki and a sombrero and disappears, to return awhile later, sunburned, saddle-sore and determined.

"The boys are doing well," he says. It means volumes. It means that here and there along the empty stretches at "Hell's Hundred" young Americans are slowly trotting their horses, or making their blanket beds with the sky for a roof and the moon for a lamp, shivering by night and sweltering by day, always alert for the flash of light on the horizon that means smugglers, Chinks—and at fight.

Most of the smugglers have their headquarters in Tia Juana, 14 miles from San Diego, of Mexicali, 100 miles east. Both towns are in the California line. They are utterly beyond all law. Their denizens always face toward California, for to cross the line with contraband means profit.

And between these two outposts of Gehenna and civilized Southern California with its prosaic jitney busses and its little green bungalows there is nothing but this thin, line of bronzed young horsemen who watch and fight, take bullets and give them 24 hours a day, unknown and appreciated.

PIERCE FIGHTS IN GALLIPOLI

Soldier Mail Reaching London Indicates There Lies Most Furious Campaign of War

EACH LETTER A THRILL

All The Horrors of Battle in Northern France or on Eastern Front Magnified

BL WILBUR S. FORREST
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 14 (By Mail).—Echoes from the firing lines in the Dardanelles coming back to London today in "soldier mail" proclaim the comparatively small struggle between the Turks and Allies on narrow Gallipoli peninsula the fiercest single campaign of the war.

All the horrors of battle in Northern France and Belgium and on the gigantic eastern front are repeated and magnified on Gallipoli. Every soldier letter has a new thrill. That the Turks are a desperate army is admitted in all of them.

The British army on Gallipoli is a wondrous mixture. Fighting beside the turbaned native troops from India are the Irish from Dublin, the famous Munsters and a regiment or two from Cork. Further on down the line are the men from faraway New Zealand and Australia while other trenches hold the British territorials from Manchester, Birmingham, and Liverpool. The kilted Scots from Edinburgh and Glasgow are also there as well as the picturesquely uniformed French Zouaves and bearded regulars of the French contingent taking their chances against the Turks with the British.

The roar of the big naval guns in the straits blend with the smaller noises of artillery on land and the crackle of machine guns and rifle fire.

The spectacles we see here on land and water would move a heart of flint" writes a member of the Dublin Fusiliers. "No words can describe what we've left behind in our march since we landed here. The shore and sides of the steep cliffs were dotted with the corpses of Turks and British alike. I lost every pal I knew."

A picturesque story was received today from Private A. M. Sampson, 13th Australian battalion. He writes: "Yesterday I was in a charge. I bayoneted a Turk right through the neck. He was the first man I ever killed and the sight made me sick and squeamish. I've tried to sleep since but his hard work for I frequently wake up and seem to feel my bayonet going into that Turk's neck. Ugh! Its beginning to get on my nerves. However, the life here is rather exciting and a bit adventurous. Within sight of our trench is our watchdog warship, patrolling up and down and at intervals letting out 10 inch shells over our heads and into the enemy's trenches. I don't know her name but we call her "Old Four Funnels." I've been wounded. But it was just a scratch of shrapnel on the leg so I haven't bothered to report it. Many of my comrades have done their bit and cashed in their checks. One I especially liked was firing along side of me and exposed himself too long. A bullet passed through his temple. He cashed in at once, but so did the sniper that got him, for I waited for him in the same place fifteen minutes later."

Advises in the same stated that Sampson had been seriously wounded and taken aboard a hospital ship.

A private in the Sixth Manchester Territorials writes: "The countryside is beautiful but the trees are torn by bullets and shells. Gigantic pieces of exploded projectiles from the warships lie about and shrapnel bullets as big as tennis balls dead Turks lie rotting against the scarlet poppies. The scene is both beautiful and horrible."

Private H. J. Forest, also of the Sixth Manchester Regiment writes: "The Sixth Manchesters have lost very heavily both in officers and men. We have been in the firing line for nearly a month. On one occasion the entire line made a general advance. We were the first to leave the trenches. We advanced a short distance and began to dig ourselves in for the Turks were firing furiously. I had made a good cover when a chap crawled up to me hit in the leg. While I was turning around to give him a first aid dressing, I must have exposed my leg for I felt a sharp pain, I was hit. I could not get away from the location which was dangerously near the enemy trenches. Then the Turks started to advance. Our fellows were forced to retire. Of course they could not take my wounded companion and myself. I was not going to be left for the Turks so I managed to get onto one foot and hopped 150 yards to cover. The Turks were thrown back and my companion was later brought in by stretcher bearers."

The Allies have lost heavily on the peninsula as well as in the straits.

The following narrative was contained in a letter from a sailor of the Battleship Majestic, sunk by the Turks. The sailor had witnessed the sinking of the Bouvet, Irresistible, Ocean, Goliath and Triumph.

"We were getting the torpedo nets aft at 6:32 a. m., on May 27. Suddenly I spotted a submarine just rounding the bows of a troopship off our port beam. I drew the commander's attention to it. He replied 'Yes, here comes the torpedo traveled at a good rate of speed through the water. At 6:33 it struck the Majestic. The poor old ship shook horribly.

"A huge volume of water shot up to port some 200 feet in the air. Our end, like the others, had come at last. Men obeyed orders to the very last minute. All recognized that it would be a fight for life. Everyone was ordered to look about for things that would keep them afloat. Everyone was cool. There was no panic. The transports sent boats. The trawlers and tugs began to move in close. But all of the men had to take to the water to be saved. I took a farewell look at the old ship's deck and dived overboard. I swam to a French tugboat and was taken aboard. At 6:40 we watched the ship heel over. She died game. The Admiral's flag was still flying as she toppled over and turned bottom up. After all the excitement was over I opened my Y. M. C. A. book and these words were before me.

"I have fought a good fight. I have kept th efaith."

EXAMINATION TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Mothers With Eligible Babies Are Urged to be at Test at Graham High School Building.

THEY ARE CALLED ON PHONE

Women who are promoting the better babies contest were busy Tuesday calling by telephone and calling personally on mothers in Rushville and Rush county who have eligible babies, calling their attention to the fact that the physical and mental test will be held in the Graham high school building Wednesday, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

The examination of babies by Rushville physicians will continue throughout the day as long as there are any babies to be examined. The age limits for the contest are from twelve to thirty-six months, which is twelve months higher than last year, when the contest was held for the first time.

Mothers are urged to remember that even though they may not have been personally invited, they are urged to take their children to the examination tomorrow. No entry blanks were sent out this year because it was thought to be a needless expense. The medals will be awarded Saturday afternoon of the chautauqua.

PROHIBITS TWO-WHEELERS

P. O. Order Says Motorcycles and Bicycles Shall Not be Used.

An order has been issued by the postoffice department at Washington prohibiting the use of bicycles or motorcycles on rural mail routes for carrying the mail. The order will become effective the first of next year. The order says the "two-wheelers" do not have the carrying capacity needed for the parcel post service and do not afford protection for mail in bad weather. The order will affect 8,000 carriers who now use the motorcycle or bicycle. Lon Kennedy is the only carrier here using a motorcycle, but does not ride it in bad weather.

REDFIELD IS ON JOB AT CHICAGO

as possible. Registration of employees by the Western Electric Company showed nearly 400 missing, but many of the names of these were included in the list of 828 bodies already identified. It was said also that probably a goodly number did not report at the plant, although safe.

The probability of swelling the list above a thousand was suggested by the announcement of detectives from the state attorney's office that they had seized the tickets from passengers boarding the Eastland for the excursion to Michigan City, Ind. They asserted that these tickets numbered 2,550 and did not account for children, musicians and the seventy-two members of the crew. They estimated that the total number of persons aboard the steamer might have been 2,800 or more, instead of 2,480, previously announced by officers of the Indiana Transportation Company.

Robert H. McCreary, deputy collector of customs, who, with two inspectors, counted the passengers as they boarded the Eastland, after reading Mr. Hoyne's statement, declared it was impossible that 2,800 or more persons boarded the ship. He also said it was "false and ridiculous" for Mr. Hoyne to state that children were not counted.

Mr. McCreary said that the 2,550 ticket stubs seized by State's Attorney Hoyne included some of the tickets taken from passengers intended for the steamer Petoskey, another of the excursion ships.

The lessees of the ship asserted that 2,408 passenger tickets had been collected.

State's Attorney MacLay Hoyne, in pursuing his investigation tonight, seized correspondence which had passed between officers of the Western Electric employees' organization, which gave the picnic, and the Indiana Transportation Company, operating the Eastland and four other steamers set aside to carry more than 7,000 persons across the lake.

The state's attorney said this correspondence showed that the steamer company had advised that the more tickets sold the greater would be the rebate paid to the employees' organization. Tickets were to be sold to employees of the Western Electric Company for 75 cents at the factory or $1 at the wharf. According to the state's attorney, the letters showed there would be a rebate of one-third on all tickets over 4,000 and something less on those above 2,500.
